MERRIMACK COLLEGE
NORTH ANDOVER, MASS.

1947

Very Rev. Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A.
1909-1971

Merrimack College was founded in 1946 by the priests of the Augustinian Order. The Very Reverend Vincent A. McQuade, O.S.A., was appointed the first president of the college in December, 1946.

Located in the towns of Andover and North Andover just outside the city of Lawrence on the Salem Turnpike, Merrimack College received its charter on April 27, 1947 from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, empowering it to confer degrees customarily granted by colleges and universities.

The first building of the college, completed in the summer of 1947, was a one story, E-shaped cinderblock structure containing seven classrooms, a library, a chapel, two laboratories and administration offices. Merrimack College now encompasses seventeen buildings on a two hundred and twenty acre campus. Eight different buildings have been constructed since 1957: O'Reilly Hall, the Business Administration building in 1958; Tagastan Hall, the student union building; and two dormitories Austin and Monican Centres were completed in 1961. In 1967 a new library, named after Fr. McQuade, the college's first president, was opened for use by Merrimack College students and Merrimack Valley residents. The McQuade Library, valued in excess of two million dollars when constructed presently contains sixty-eight thousand volumes and has a projected capacity for two hundred and fifty thousand volumes.

A different concept in dormitory living was initiated on the campus in 1970 with the construction of three townhouse complexes. With the addition of these townhouse houses, Merrimack College is now able to provide campus residence facilities for eight hundred and fifty two students.

The first academic year commenced on September 29, 1947 with a faculty comprised of eight Augustinian priests and five lay instructors. One hundred and sixty five men constituted the student body. These first students were divided among three areas of study: Business Administration, Liberal Arts and Pre-medical studies. Women were admitted to the Merrimack student body in September, 1950 with the entrance of nine co-eds.

The year 1951 marked the first commencement in Merrimack College history, with one hundred and twelve graduates receiving degrees. In the years since that first commencement, Merrimack College has continued its expansion in many fields: educational stature, student enrollment, cultural activities and physical expansion.

Enrollment in the full time day sessions has increased in the past decade from eight hundred and fifty to two thousand one hundred and thirteen students, including representatives from foreign countries. In addition, one thousand three hundred students attend evening and summer courses at the college. The number of faculty and administration personnel has risen in the past eleven years from sixty two to one hundred and forty seven.

Concurrent with its educational development and its increased student enrollment, Merrimack has expanded its cultural activities to bring forth a more integral relationship between the college and the surrounding community. The Fine Arts Department has been expanded and includes extra-curricular dramatics and music as well as courses in the arts. The Cultural Affairs Committee instituted the celebrity series in 1966 to present a wide variety of cultural talent to the campus and community.

In keeping pace with the rising student enrollment and the need for total student living in a collegiate environment, the Board of Trustees last year approved plans for a two million dollar Physical Education Facility and Convocation Center to be completed by September, 1972. The ground breaking ceremony for this complex marked not only the beginning of construction of the eighteenth building on the North Andover campus, but also the beginning of a new era for Merrimack College.

IN MEMORIAM

John Morgan
1949-1971

Time and timelessness—hand in hand—until the untimely suddenly stops everything.
We are a ship—in the wind we are boundless,
traveling everywhere—suddenly lost.
Jack, a part of our gone ship and our timelessness—suddenly gone.

“When you part from your friend
you grieve not;

For that which you love most in him
may be clearer in his absence . . .”

In Jack's absence we harbor his being, his love, his timelessness—feel his smile in the wind and breathe deeply.

A black and white photograph of a crowded bar or restaurant. In the foreground, a young man with dark hair is seated, looking towards the left. Behind him, several other patrons are visible, including a woman in a light-colored top and a man in a dark jacket. The background is filled with numerous bottles on shelves, suggesting a well-stocked bar.

CAMPUS MINISTRY

It doesn't say anything about Tagastan 303 in the Bible . . . only something about going forth and baptizing all men. Jesus never mentioned teaching retarded children, or working in Appalachia . . . only to spread his word to everyone. The Apostles never heard of Santa Claus, but they let the children talk to Jesus. Maybe they've gotten the message wrong, but the people pictured on this page, and many who aren't have taken it upon themselves to let everyone know that Jesus is still around—even if he sometimes looks like a Merrimack Student . . . or Santa Claus.

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

The year 1972 marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Merrimack College. Twenty-five years in the life of an institution as in the life of an individual is a large segment worthy of note. Though 1972 is the precise anniversary, we began our observance last Fall, marking the period in which the decision to open a college in the locality was made. The founder, Father Vincent McQuade, came to Andover in January of 1947 and classes were held for the first time in September, 1947. A silver anniversary is a time for looking back as well as looking ahead, much more a time for self-criticism than self-congratulation. And still, it is something to have survived even for what is a modest time in the history of higher education. What the period 1947 to 1972 lacks in duration, it more than makes up for in the complexity of events, the rapidity of change, and the emergence of problems which affect all of humanity. It is no exaggeration to say that Merrimack College parallels a period which exhibits more potential for good and evil than the hundred years preceeding it.

A backward look at the College demonstrates the fact, too often lost sight of in the democritization now affecting all of us, that the grand design needs men and women of strong will and wide ranging intellect to implement it. With no illusions about the dependence of leadership upon the collaborating work of the co-operators, I must pay tribute to three men whose extraordinary gifts created and sustained Merrimack College. Cardinal Cushing to whose great heart and clear vision this college owes its inception; Father Vincent McQuade who saw it through the first twenty years of its existence and Father Joseph Gildea, first Vice-President and Dean, who brought to the College qualities of mind and heart which affected every faculty member and every student who set foot on this campus. Working with them and indispensable to the life of the institution were a host of Augustinians and laymen to whom we all owe a debt larger than we can pay.

Merrimack, like every college with a destiny, stands for a system of values. In our case the institutional commitment to Catholic Christianity provides the framework. Whether we advance falteringly or steadfastly in pursuit of our goals, the goals do not change. Somehow the college must bear witness to a body of enduring convictions. Though the landscape of higher education is altered radically from what it was in 1947, the landmarks which give testimony to the Christian assessment of life and eternity are as enduring as the hills.

As Merrimack's twenty-fifth year draws to a close, so also does the final year for the class of 1972.

A Twenty-fifth Anniversary is an important milestone in the life of an institution such as Merrimack, but so also are the final days for those of us about to depart. These are the times for reflection and also for projection. Those "good times" and "not so good times" have hopefully acted to make us what we are and what we will be in the future.

It is the purpose of this volume to capture some of those moments in the hope of making them come to mind in the years ahead—as a memorial to us as a class and to the entire Merrimack community.

The year is indeed over; piles of photographs and copy carbons give mute evidence to the fact that the 1972 MERRIMACKAN is complete.

I would like to thank at this time all those who worked so unselfishly for the MERRIMACKAN this year. The past few months seemed like an eternity, but somehow it all came together, only through the endless strength and fortitude of the entire staff.

I would like to thank Fr. John O'Malley for his guiding hand; Mrs. Betty Lee for her many hours of work; Mr. Paul Eaton for his assistance throughout the year; Vantine Studios for their fine work and co-operation; and finally Mr. J. Joseph Donovan of Wm. J. Keller, Inc. for being here, ready to help, whenever he was needed.

Sincerely,
Daniel F. White
